ANTARA RECORDS - NEW RELEASE
Jon Simons, Seemingly Dreamingly

Boulder, CO – Colorado based recording label, Antara Records, released Seemingly Dreamingly, the sophomore album by singer/songwriter, Jon Simons, on November 5th, 2002.

Featuring ten new original songs, Seemingly Dreamingly was written, produced, and recorded by Jon Simons in various locations including The Congress House Studio in Austin.

The music is mellow, sometimes melancholy, and builds from Jon's subdued vocal harmonies and acoustic parts. From this foundation evolves lush, dreamlike melodies of strings, analog organs, vibraphone, female backing vocals and more.

Among the many talented backing musicians, much of the bass guitar was played by Joshua Zarbo, bassist for Merge recording group, Spoon. Some of the other players include Tim Dittmar (of Bo Bud Greene), Laura Phelan (of Golden Arm Trio), and Michal Raizen (of Divahn).

The album was co-mixed by Jon and record producer, Mark Hallman. Mark works with such talents as Ani Difranco, Oasis, Bob Mould, Shawn Colvin, and more.

The new release will be supported with a college and public radio campaign and an upcoming early spring tour.
